DOL Y TAKES TEA.

When dolly sits down to the table, And ev'rything's ready, you see— With cookies and water for Mabel, And water — cookies for me,

We nibble and chatter with dolly, And offer her "tea" from a spoon, And eiten our meal is so jolly, it lasts through the whole afternoon

And says that she really must go, And I say: "Oh, truly, I'm sorry, And dolly enjoyed it, I know."

Then gayly we clear off the table When dolly has finished her test, With cookies and water for Mabel, And water and cookies for me. -Altert Blgelow Paine, in St. Nicholas

PLEASURE OF CANOEING.

Capsisies in Shallow Water One of the Delights of This Incomparable Summer Sport.

Many a boy's acquaintance with canoes has begun with a "dugout," jolly old log needing the skill of a bicycle rider to keep it right side up. Alarmingly unsteady, it had the virtue of never sinking, and always promptly righting itself after upsetting the occupant. On many of the northern waters 40 years ago these dugouts were part of the equipment of a farmer. Now they are kept as mementoes of nautical evolution. To-day the uninitiated is bewildered by the variety of canoe craft. Pleasure of canoeing is to choose a small stream and watch it grow in volume and importance. One should travel in light marching order. Flannels, blankets and rubber sheets are indispensable. On this the first trip you may try hammocks, but you will soon discover that the ground is preferable Sleeping in a hammock is wont to develop "stitches" and cramps, to say noth ing of the tendency to give one's neck a "set" at an ungraceful and uncomfortable angle. The commissariat should include some substantial food, as tinned meats and hard tack, which should be constructed on the compartment combination plan with provision in the "grub" sack. A trolling line will usually supply fresh fish, and farm houses milk, if one is not quite in the wilds.

Take a field glass instead of a gun. Every beginner should realize the fun and acquire the confidence gained by capsizing a canoe. Let him take it however, to fordable depths and there rock himself into the water. This is one way by which the craft and the man may find themselves.-Country Life in America.

SURFBOATS IN CEYLON.

They Are Able to Do All Sorts of Queer Stunts.

The illustration shows a Cevion surfboat, which is also used for fishing purposes. This is the case not because the craft offers any peculiar advantages for the purpose for which it is used, but because of the fact that, as Ceylon is almost entirely surrounded by reefs and there is constantly a terrific surf, nothing short of surfboats would be able to get out to the open water. The fishermen in Ceylon are a very peculiar lot.

A CEYLON SURFBOAT

They form a caste of their own and appear to think themselves better than the people upon whose purchases their daily bread depends. They are able to do all sorts of stunts with these surfboats, and, considering their flimsy couetruction, it is really remarkable how few arcidents occur.

The Adage Held Good.

Judge Cox, of the United States cireuit court, while delivering a lecture at Columbia university, told of a young lawyer who came before the supreme court to argue a case in which he was also defendant. Addressing the court, he referred to the old French adage declaring that he who argues his own case has a fool for a client. After the case had been heard he left for his home in St. Louis, asking a friend to notify him by wire when the decision was handed down. This was the pithy dispatch he received: "Old French adage affirmed."

Why Willie Was Excused.

He fell down stairs just before school time and we feered his internal insides was hurt at first, but they aint. The Doctor says is required for each puncheon of rum. that no part of his Anattomy was hurt but the brewzing of the eppyredmis of of the outside hide and also his hipp hurt some. But he narrowly escaped fatal death. Bo kindly excuse."

WISE WASHINGTON DOG. Boes Many Wonderful Things and Is the Recognized Mascot of a Fire Company.

A number of fire companies of the district are possessed of mascots in the shape of dogs or other pets which have a firm hold upon the affections of the men and command their stanch support in claims for superiority in intelligence and physical prowess. Most of them are dogs who have developed a love of the excitement incident to the response to alarms and usually take a prominent place on the run to the fire. Some of them are often noted setting the pace for the engine or other apparatus of their company, running just ahead of the horses and barking loudly with elation to see the people scattering to either sideasthey come on. Usually their lives do not cover a very long period in the fire business, for, becoming overbold or lacking a triffe in alertness, they are caught under the feet of the onrushing team or are not quick enough to avoid some falling timber or piece of apparatus, and their career comes to an abrupt close. Several weeks ago the mascot of Truck D was killed, being run over by the truck while answering a call.

The old Franklin Fire company of No. 1 chemical has a dog mascot who bids fair to equal the bravest, and yet who has sufficient level-headed caution to insure an extended life of usefulness. His name is "Nig," in consequence of his being black all over except for a white spot on his breast. He is a buil terrier of heavy build, with a well-kept coat and intelligent face, and may nearly always be found somewhere near Assistant Chief Wagner or Foreman Harper. The latter goes over to George town every day for lunch, and is almost invariably accompanied by Nig. If it happens that Nig is not at hand when the foreman starts for home when he does find that his friend has gone he gives one evidence of the superiority of his intelligence over that of the ordinary dog. Running out on the avenue he waits for a car to stop; if it should hap-Although of Flimsy Construction | pen to be yellow it is of no service to Nig. and he does not pay any attention to it. But when the car is green Nig gets aboard and remains on the car until it reaches the point nearest to his destination and there hops off. The men in the company believe he can distinguish between the alarms to which his company must respond and those not in its district. At any rate, if anywhere near when the apparatus is to go, he is always ready for the run. He is not foolish enough to run in front of the horses but usually keeps to the side of the engine. No matter how many other pieces of apparatus there may be at a fire he can always pick out his own, and when the fire is out usually rides home on the driver's seat. At times he seems to want to help his friends in the work of extinguishing the flames, and rushes with them into burning houses without a sign of fear. It is related that at a fire in an uptown residence recently it was feared that someone was asleep in the upstairs rooms and two men were sent to investigate. The smoke was very dense and they were crawling along the floor of a hallway holding their faces close to the floor to get the purest air when one of them felt something brush against him from behind, and then a dog's sneeze was heard, and it turned out to be Nig, who was evidently concerned lest they venture into too great danger. How Bay Rum Is Made.

Bay rum is manufactured from the dried leaves of Pimento acris. Bay rum is procured by distillation, and this in a very simple manner.
